

What is Fellowship?

Chartered Fellowship with the CIOB signifies the highest level of professional recognition in construction management, awarded to those with extensive experience, leadership, and significant contributions to the industry. It connects individuals to a global network of elite professionals and upholds high ethical and professional standards, enhancing their influence and credibility.

Eligibility

You will need at least 5 years of experience leading an organisation, people and contributing to the industry, communities or society. Candidates must also have responsibilities that extend to working with sector stakeholders. This work must demonstrate a contribution to the wider industry or the general public and could be through industry-specific charities such as the Construction Youth Trust, with the CIOB or other stakeholders such as schools, universities, communities and community groups or government agencies.

What assistance is given?

Training LMS offers a unique one to one mentoring service to assist at every stage of the process. Over a series of meetings your mentor will guide you through the report, with extensive assistance in its preparation.

When you are happy with it and are approaching your interview guidance will be given on what to expect and how to prepare.

What is involved?

You will be required to produce a 3,000 word reflective account of a project or initiative you have led, through which you can demonstrate your competence in leading people and organisations within the sector.

Following the written application stage, you will attend a professional discussion, lasting approximately 1.5 hours. This is conducted by trained professionals and includes two assessors and one chair. The discussion is based on your written project, as well as an interactive discussion on a topical issue affecting the industry.
